Junior Editors Quiz on-MARS

QUESTION: Why does Mars have that name and why is it red?

ANSWER: Mars was the Roman god of war. The color red symbolizes anger and danger and so is connected with the idea of war. The planet Mars gleams distinctly red in the night sky because of iron oxide in its crust. This red gleam suggested war and the god Mars to the ancients, and so the planet had a name. For many years people have speculated that there might be life on Mars. Its north and south poles show ice caps which suggest water, and there are mysterious dark lines which look like canals. On July 14, 1965, the space craft Mariner IV came within 5,600 miles of the surface of Mars. The visiting ship, equipped with special cameras and transmitting devices, sent back 22 photographs which were the first closeups of another planet's solid surface ever taken. They showed that Mars has a surface pockmarked with craters, like that of the moon. No signs of water or the canals appeared. No trace of life could be seen in what looked like a dead world. Many scientists, however, still feel that there might be some minute form of plant or animal life on Mars.

Legislation Expected To End Tie-Up

Agreement Reached With Johnson's Aid Beaten By Big Vox

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress catches the airlines strike on the rebound today and moves swiftly following overwhelming union rejection of a fat contract agreement worked out under White House guidance.

Both the Senate and House Labor committees will hold hear ings on the 25-day strike which has grounded five airlines.

Sen, Lister Hill, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Labor Com mittee, said his group had reached tentative agreement on a proposal to allow President Johnson to declare a national emergency and order the strikers back to work.

Senate Democratic Leader Mansfield predicted prompt Senate action but indicated it might take most of this week to hustle emergency legislation through Congress The machinists who grounded 60 per cent of the nations air traffic threw a monkey wrench into the White House agreement Sunday by rejecting it in secret balloting, 17,251 to 6,587.

The Tonkin Bay Resolution

Two years ago in early August, U.S. Navy planes bombed North Vietnamese coastal bases, patrol boars and an oil installation. It was the beginning of U.S. military escalation in Southeast Asia.

The bombing was followed in a few days by a congressional resolution of support for President Johnson "to take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression.

"Fuether aggression" and "armed attack" referred to an attack by North Vietnamese PT-boats on the U.S. destroyers Maddox and were not damaged and the PT-boats presumably were sunk, but President Johnson ordered

The Tonkin Bay resolution, as it has come to be called, is the government's answer when critics accuse it of waging a foreign war without a formal declaration of war.

The critics, on the other hand, do not all House vote was unanimous and only two No votes were cast in the Senate, some legislators voted for the resolution with misgivings.

A suspicion was voiced at the time that the resolution's purpose might be to snortcircuit future criticism of presidential policy in Southeast Asia. It has been made abundantly clear since that many senators and representatives did not intend to vote unqualified endorsement for all-out war. Only a declaration of war could be so interpreted.

has a direct impact on foreign affairs and needs to be supervised on that score.

President Johnson has revealed many times how he feels about criticism. He has called his critics "Nervous Nellies." He has questioned their patriotism. He has chided them for not being as sensitive as they should be about attacks on U.S. troops in Southeast Asia. He has referred to people who want "to tuck in their tails and come running home."

It's all part of political give and take, but the game is threatened whenever one side starts to hint the other side is committing treason. It is still short of treason to talk about the way the Kennedy-Johnson administration eased police questioning had put new limits on the use of confessions at trials, and so far as it is known no effort has been made to draw a confession from Speck.

However, Police Supt. O. W. Wilson's statement at a news conference 15 hours before Speck's capture that "as far as I'm concerned, there is no question he's the murderer" has brought criticism.

HARVARD LAW professors Paul A. Freund, Mark DeWolfe Howe and Albert M. Sacks said Wilson had prejudged the case. Warren D. Wolfson, a criminal attorney who figured in the landmark Escobedo confession case, said the publicity would hinder Speck's chances for a fair trial.

After Speck's arrest, Wilson defended himself. Asked at a news conference if he should have called Speck the murderer, Wilson replied: "He

"The information about Speck that I gave the Chicago public was information that we determined they should have had. This was our justification for announcing that Speck was the kill-

"I saw no reason for concealing those facts from the public."

Northwestern University law Professor Fred Inbau said Wilson not only was within bounds in making the statement but "was under a duty and obligation.'

"Keep in mind that this fellow isn't going to be tried next week," Inbau, a member of the Chicago Crime Commission, said last week. "What the Police Department said is not going to prejudice his rights."

More typical of the walking - on - eggs approach of authorities in the Speck case was the response of John Stamos, first assistant state's attorney, when newsmen asked if the state would try to send Speck to the electric chair. Said Stamos: "No comment."

told of the oppressive taxes levied on villagers by the Viet Cong and collected at the points of machine guns.

This must be shocking fare for an audience accustomed for years to only one side of the story. The question arises: Why is the other side of the story now being presented? Surely no Soviet audience has been given such information by any organ of the Soviet press.

THE ANSWER may be that the Czechoslovak Communist regime may want justification for supporting a route to peace in Viet Nam which might not square with Soviet views, or might fall far short of the all-or-nothing demands of the Communists in Viet Nam.

Romania has come forward with something which also arouses suspicion that it is straining hard at the Moscow leash over the Viet Nam question.

The Romanian Communist government, in a note to the United Nations Security Council, has said that "examination of acts of war in Viet Nam is within the competence of the 1954 Geneva Conference on Indo-China

This stops short of agreeing with the U.S. stand that the Geneva Conference - which divided Viet Nam 12 years ago - should be re-convened to seek peace. But it seems to come close to asking for such a convocation. The Soviet Union, on the other hand, has rejected the appeals of both Britain and India to support reconvening the Geneva meeting. The U.S.S.R. and Britain are co-chairmen of the conference, and the two would be empowered to call it into session.

Crews Jump Ship In Cong Run

By Victor Riesel

NEW YORK - The Greeks have words for it: Jump ship if the freighter is sailing for North Vietnamese ports. Slash the delivery of supplies to the Viet Cong. Starve rather than take war bonuses from operators doing business with the Ho Chi Minh

This gives the Communist global maritime network a dose of its own preventive medicine. A year ago the Soviets' waterfront people launched a drive to convince foreign crews to defect from ships serving the U.S. in Southeast Asia. They were twice Victor Riesel government.

Then the National Maritime Union swung into a counteroffensive directed here by its president, Joe Curran, and in the Orient by his representative, Jim (Pat) Paterson.

Since then scores of Greek seamen have defected in Asian waters from at least five large freighters-costing the Viet Cong thousands of tons of vital war "hardware."

DETAILED REPORTS of these revolts at sea are here in the hands of Joe Curran. Most dramatic of those made available to this correspondent is the story of the 7,173-ton freighter Acme, once a U.S. Liberty ship, but now owned by a Cypriot company, the Acme Shipping Co. Ltd.

Greek seamen aboard the craft in the North Vietnamese port of Cam Pha later defected and reported that they saw an armed Communist Chinese freighter in the harbor there shoot at American planes.

The Red craft was a sitting duck for the U.S. bombers-bound on June 17 for a fuel depot raid-but the American fliers carefully avoided returning the fire.

In the port there were two Norwegian vessels and one Russian freighter.

The horrendous saga of the S.S. Acme is as grim as any tale in the mammoth fiction of the sea. It took on a crew in an Italian port after its owners guaranteed that it would not sail into the war zone. Then it steamed through the Suez, stopped at Djibouti, into Hong Kong and then, despite the men's protests, sailed for a mainland Chinese port.

There it loaded up with more weapons, and it was announced that the craft was heading for Ho's Port Cam Pha. The men protested. The captain broke out small arms. The crew was helpless in a Communist port. So, instead of steaming for Japan, the vessel, now blacklisted by the U.S., ran into Cam Pha.

THERE, ACCORDING to the report given to Pat Paterson by crewman M. Sokratis, the men were put on starvation food and water rations for at least a week. Again they were under the captain's guns. Then the boat was "shifted" to Haiphong.

Contact was made by Yokahama-based Pat Paterson, the NMU's roving man in Asia. He works hard at getting word around that he'll help any crew revolting against Communist suppliers. So it's catching.

So much has word gotten around Asia that even in Cambodia men have left their craft. One of those his by defection is the S.S. Alkon, owned by a Panamanian company. Its Greek crew had been deceived while signing on. The ship was loading in Sihanoukville, Cambodia's principal seaport.

THERE THE MEN sold clothes for food and slept in the streets for two nights. Finally with Paterson's help, they were put on a plane for Hong Kong. In the Crown Colony the Greek consul, cooperating with Paterson and a representative of the International Transportworkers Federation, flew the eight men back to Greece.

such craft as the S.S. Marigo (owned by a Monrovian firm) in Bombay, and the S.S. Antonia II (operated by a Cypriot company) in Hong

With these sagas in mind, Joe Curran conferred two weeks ago with Italian seamen leaders in Rome

Attempts in many parts of the country to achieve a "racial balance" by requiring children to be transported by bus from their neighborhoods to distant schools is a source of much resentment. While the Republicans have by no means taken clear-cut positions on many of these issues history shows that the tendency of the discontinued voter is to cash his ballot against candidates of the party in power. The theory is that he can then trust to the good sense of the winning candidates to realize that the discontented voter will have another chance to express himself against incumbent officeholders in the next election two years hence if the Louisville, had raised their hand when Ballantine asked how many thought Richard Speck, indicted in the slaying of eight student nurses in Chicago, should be sentenced to at least 10 years in prison. The rest, the Louisville Courier-Journal re-

In the other, the court imposed a series of restrictions on police questioning of suspects, including the rule that the suspect must be told of his right to remain silent and to have a lawyer at his side. As a result, Chicago authorities have been treading very carefully in their dealings with the publication Literarni Noviny republished a series of articles from the conservative French newspaper Le Monde.

The curious behavior of the controlled press

THESE articles, dealing with Viet Nam, for the first time told readers of a Communist newspaper in a Communist country that the Viet Cong commit cruel atrocities against villagers of South Viet Nam. Up to now, Communist andiences have been told only that atrocities were committed by Americans and their South Vietnamese allies.

The Czechoslovak paper - and a broadcast of the articles as well - carried Le Monde's account of how the Viet Cong cause destruction and suffering among the rural Viet Nam population, how they kidnap, murder and torture village chiefs and local officials, how they commit "executions, repressions and terror.

Le Monde's stories detailed grim episodes of Viet Cong terror and pointed out that "all the people and not merely the collaborators, undergo steadily increasing pressure." It told of forced conscription of villagers for Viet Cong guerrilla service, including the drafting of boys 14. It

It's Spreading Among Voters Inflation is talked about in politics as a source of concern among the voters. What really counts is voter discontent due to a variety of causes.

Discontent

By David Lawrence

When good times are experienced by the citizen, the party in power claims the credit. Inevitably, therefore, when economic conditions take a turn for the worse, the incumbent party is likely to be hurt at the pol's. Many changes can occur within a few months, but, if the congressional elections were held today, the voter re-action would bring many surprises. The amount of intensity David Lawrence of voter dissatisfaction is not readily measured but there are many symptoms evident already In fact, voter discontent can be summarized somewhat as follows: 1. The rise in the cost of living. This does not affect every group the same way, as many workers have been steadily getting wage increases. It does hurt the fixed-income groups, especially in the older-age brackets. Even among families with an increase in income, the housewife resents substantial rises in consumer prices

2. Decreases in "take-home pay." White here has been much hullabaloo about the cut in federal income taxes and some excise levies, there have at the same time been hikes in Social Security rates as well as in state and city taxes. These have been more than enough in many cases to offset the reduction in federal taxes. 3. Higher interest rates. This has proved a setback to persons trying to borrow money to buy a home. It has also resulted in a building slump, and has thus affected employment in certain categories. 4. THE WAR IN VIET NAM. The disaffection is not confined to those who have sons of draft age. There are many other citizens who feel that government spending on nonmilitary items should have been cut to absorb some of the costs of the Viet Nam war. Another source of dissatisfaction is to be found among those who think the war should long ago have been prosecuted more vigorously. While each of these may in itself be a minority element, they all add up to a sizable segment of discontent. 5. The civil rights controversy. Resentment voters the proposed provisions of the fair housing laws have produced uneasiness. It's felt that the new restrictions may affect real-estate values in many communities. 6. Yes and no. If they teach in Gas-heated buildings (some 99% of them do) there's no need for a degree in heating engineering. Gas heating does the job so efficiently, so economically, so automatically the school people scarcely give it a thought. But we suspect that those few teachers in electrically heated schools had better bone up on their three R's-Rate of heating, Recirculation, and Requirements of the ventilation code. Explain? Certainly. The electric company is offering a 1¢-per-kilowatt-hour rate to schools for their lighting. And that's good. But what's not so good is that they're not offering this reduced rate to all schools—just to the ones that agree to use electric heat. And even at the 1¢ KWH rate, electric heat costs three times as much as Gas heat. If the school doesn't want to pay extra for heat, they have to pay about $7.50 more per classroom per month for their lights.

Aside from the fact that electric heat costs the taxpayers three times as much as Gas, and ignoring the common-sense idea that it's just not right for one school to be charged twice as much to use lights as another, there's still the matter of the teachers.

Electric heat is expensive, so teachers have to keep a weather eye on temperature controls. Also, the amount of fresh air let in has to be doled with a miserly hand, because it's much less costly to warmover stale air than to heat outside air.

If figuring this out doesn't keep the school people busy enough, there's always the problem of the doors. Teachers in several electrically-heated schools have told us that they must herd the children in and out of just two or three doors, even though the building may have dozens. Every time a door is opened, cold air pulls out some heat. With gas, that's no problem. An open-door policy in an all-electric school can soon lead to a wolf-at-the-door condition in the budget.

We join teachers, school officials and taxpayers in wondering if it's not much too expensive to accept the electric company's reduced price. Wouldn't it be great if they'd offer their 1¢ lighting rate to all schools . . .

... without making them take their stale, hot air, too?

THINK OF ALL THE THINGS YOU CAN DO WITH THE MONEY YOU SAVE, GAS MAKES THE BIG DIFFERENCE.

Now Is Time To Plan For Snow Melting

In today's hot weather, next winter's snow is probably the last thing on your mind.

However, the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau of Chicago points out, this is the best time to plan for "automatic" snow removal, while streets and sidewalks are clean.

Snow-melting systems are easy to install and, once in, cost just pennies to operate. How water containing an anti - freeze solution is circulated through pipe embedded in the sidewalk or driveway. Usually, the same boiler that heats your house can handle the snow - melting system too. It can be started manually from indoors or there are controls that work automatically when snow starts to fall.

Snow-melting systems are fast gaining in popularity for shopping centers, churches, hospitals and other commercial and institutional establishments. They reduce the tedius job of trying to find reliable employes who are willing to shovel snow and, once installed, are usually less expensive than the cost of labor and "conventional" removal equipment.

Wood Bleaching Tips Are Offered

AP Newsfeatures Question: My hobby is buying seond-hand furniture, removing the old finishes and putting on new ones

My wife recently told me I had to get rid of some of the renovated pieces of furniture we had around the house, as it was getting too difficult to move. I sold two tables, a bureau and a cabinet - and now have received an order to redo a vanity for a neighbor. But she wants it refinished in a very bright color, like the blonde finishes you sometimes see in modern furniture. I assume that means I will have to bleach the wood - and that is one aspect of wood finishing I have never attempted. Is it difficult, and do you think I should try it? ANSWER: If done carefully, bleaching wood is something that almost anyone can attempt Since you already are experienced in the finishing of various kinds of wood, you should do better than most. Our recommendation is to buy a commercial bleach and not try a homemade mixture, even though we have seen some good results with the latter.

Follow the directions very carefully, especially regarding the use of rubber gloves, old clothing, etc., as a bleach is a strong chemical solution.

We are sure you know that bleach must be applied only to raw wood, which means that all the old finish first must be re moved Also, since the chemical may damage any metal on the outside of the vanity, be sure all hardware is removed before you begin, as you probably will do

QUESTION: The house we recently purchased came partly unfinished. We got a cheaper price on it by agreeing to do some of the work ourselves. The walls are made of fiberboard. Can they be painted the same as plaster?

Junior Editors Quiz on EXERCISE

QUESTION: How did exercising originate?

ANSWER: Exercising is important throughout life. It develops the bodies of growing children and keeps those of the grown-ups in tune. We don't know enough about the early history of man to say exactly when exercising originated. But because exercise, which makes us feel so good, is a part of play, we can feel sure that children in early times got a lot of it as they played in front of their caves or huts. Exercise on a large, organized scale came into history in the early Greek period. The Greeks built gymnasiums, or places where the physical training of young people could be carried on. A sound, healthy body was a Greek ideal. Soon, exercise was developed into competitive sports. The Greeks held the first athletic events in history. At first, foot races were held on the plains of Marathon, but jumping, javelin and discusthrowing and wrestling events were added. Thus developed the famous Olympic Games, the first record of which is 776 B. C. In 1896, the Olympic Games were reestablished.

FOR YOU TO DO: Try the exercises at bottom of picture. Add some more of your own invention.

Deborah Jones of San Mateo, Calif., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review.
